Caslon 1734: reference

Every font of the Caslon 1734 reconstruction, set at its true size: the body measured on William Caslon's specimen sheet of 1734, with solid leading (leading equal to the body, as the metal was set). Each page shows one size and style twice, as the clean font (the type itself, averaged from many impressions) and as the Impression font (one typical real impression), each setting the passage Caslon printed in that size on the 1734 sheet, then its character set.

Microsoft Word sets type only in half points, so in the Word version each size is rounded to the nearest half point; the line spacing keeps the exact body. The InDesign version uses the exact sizes. Characters for which no reliable impression survives are missing from the fonts and listed on each page, in a different typeface.

Fonts: github.com/nathanmsolomon/caslon-1734. Use fonts/ttf (TrueType) for Word, fonts/ (OpenType) for InDesign and everything else. The Word document embeds the fonts.

At nos vigeſimum jam diem patimur hebeſcere aciem horum autoritatis. habemus enim hujuſmodi ſenatuſconſultum, verumtamen incluſum in tabulis, tanquam gladium in vagina reconditum : quo ex ſenatuſconſulto conſti im interfectum te eſſe, Catilina, convenit. Vivis : & vivis non ad deponendam, ſed ad confirmandam audaciam. Cupio, P. C., me eſſe clementem : cupio in tantis reipub. periculis non diſſolutum videri : ſed jam meipſum inertiæ
